PAST TRIPS.

23rd-24th September. SNOWCLIMB.

Misleading directions by the leader, loss of a sense of direction (to be repeated) by the front runners, amnesia by those who had done the trip before and herd instinct by the rest of the mob, allowed the block of the party to start on a round a mountain tramp instead of heading up for Kapuni Lodge. However, they were rounded up and shepherded onto the correct track, eventually arriving at the Lodge at lunch time, soon to be joined by two of the Club's hard men, beaten back by terrible conditions (so they said.) It didn't look too bad outside to the rest of us, so some went for a pre-dinner stroll, while the others played in the snow with their ropes and axes and things.

Sunday morning the leader was woken at 6.00 a.m. by an insomniac and in order not to lose face he had to get up and then make everyone else do likewise. An hour and a half later we tied on our bits of mountaineering gear and waddled off on cramponned feet, leaving two behind to sunbathe on a rug (very cosy.) Well, we all made the summit after a bit of a sweat, all that is save one, who showed his maturity by spurning the final few feet, and instead started larking about on some very steep ice on the crater face of the Shark's Tooth, while we sat watching, eating and giving advice.

The descent went smoothly, which was just as well, as most of it was made sitting down. With the departure from the mountain of all the group, the trip leader's cares evaporated only to return again at the 11.00 p.m. when parents started phoning to report, no re-appearance of their children. Apparently, one carload was confused by the cunningly placed bandstand in Manaia; fortunately was just a temporary confusion because their innate sense of direction, sharpened by many years of tramping, told them that when they got to New Plymouth they were heading in the wrong direction, otherwise they may well have got lost.

Trip members: Pauline Gibbons, Eleanor Schlee, Sue Streeter, Jane Scrymgeour, Adrienne Thompson, Trevor Stretton, Kevin Pearce, Lawson Pither, Chris Dench, Tony Croad, Tim Short, Brad Owen, Bruce Lockwood.

30th September-1st October. BUSHCRAFT.

Saturday -- 14 members and non members, all loyal devoted trampers departed at 007-15 hours from the Izadium. A bright spring morning brought an odd colour arrangement of bush singlets and shirts as we reached the property of Mr. S.B. Clifton, on whose property we were to camp. A pleasant ¾ hour walk was rewarded by wet socks and a medium sized clearing -- perfect for our bivouac building attempts. Some helpful hints on conservation, roping holds and knots from Russell and we went about our construction of the bivouacs. Numerous spots were chosen, logs, rocks, mounds and a dry creek bed. Trees were being chopped down the left, right and centre but very little to show for it. Finally half a dozen fragile looking but very practical bivvy frames were abandoned for lunch. After lunch, we applied the finishing touches. Russell, Keith and Roger then gave us a demonstration on pitching a tent fly and tent and how to pack a pack probably. Our bivouacs were inspected and all rated very high for beginners. Fires were lit and tea cooked. Then, a moonlight congregation gathered around the main fire, and soon after we retired.

Sunday -- after breakfast, some energetic members went for a short walk up the stream a way. By the time, we returned the day trippers had arrived. We then attempted to learn to set up a compass. After lunch we talk off in two teams on a compass bearing of 12°, our destination -- never reached but we all arrived back safely to the campsite.

We cleaned up and strolled back up the track to the cars. A short drive and we were down at the Oroua River for river crossing attempts. After changing our clothes, we drove to Apiti for ice-creams and then home, arriving back at the Police Station at about 600.30 Hours. All in all a very successful weekend.

A special thank you to Mr. Clifton for the valuable use of his land.
