Letter to the Editor

Dear Editor

I can but sit back and accept the revered tones with which the Tongue and Meats are referred to in the first part of A. Bill's letter. The compliments may be misplaced. Few Tongue and Meats have traversed the Camels. The trouble is that the camel will not co-operate. Well behaved camels get down on their knees to enable travellers to climb aboard. Even Tongue and Meats attempting to get over the Camelhead are likely to get bitten. We defer to male camels when it comes to mounting the arse end.

But A. Bill has gone too far in his ultimate paragraph. Hands off our name. The initials from which the name is derived are W.T. & M.C.

Regards

(Mike Hollis)
PRESIDENT

Dear Editor

I have heard of some nasty rumours going around that certain individuals in this club have taken up skiing (sic). I would like to draw the attention to all concerned that this club is a Tramping and Mountaineering club not a Ski club.

Over the past month the following people have been seen skiing (sic).

Patron	:	Lawson Pither
President	:	Chrissy Elliot
Vice President	:	Kevin Pearce
Secretary	:	Terry Crippen
Trip Convenor	:	Trevor Bissell
Treasurer	:	Donald French
Editor	:	Philip Budding

This is only a few of those that have been seen. It is rather disgraceful and so soon after Mr A. Bill's letter in last months newsletter.

Yours forever climbing

B. Bill

PAST EVENTS

18 – 20 July – THE SOUTHERN KAWEKAS

After a predawn breakfast the four of us headed up from Kuripapango onto the Kuri-Kiwi Saddle Ridge. A sublime day greeted us; no wind, a clear blue sky and the tops white with snow. The country all the way to Ruapehu was a panorama of snow covered ranges and valleys. To the north beyond the Tits and Cooks Horn the higher main range of the Kawekas looked inviting so after a hut-book stop at Kiwi Saddle we headed through the soft snow and contorta to Kaiarahi having lunch just before Castle Camp.

Most of the ridges and faces on the east of the Southern Kawekas have got the dreaded Pinus contorta on them, a NZFS attempt at erosion control. This area is badly eroded with the pumice and ash cover removed over large areas exposing the greywacke bedrock. The bedrock is also now eroding forming large bare faces and gully heads. Man, with his burning off and sheep and cattle grazing earlier this century is one cause. Geology is another, since this area is very (geologically) active. Contorta does grow good at these altitudes (3000 ft to 5000 ft plus), but as on Ruapehu it has become a problem. It won't grow on the actively eroding faces and gullies (nothing would, its bare rock constantly being removed) so it grows around the margins of these areas stopping the scars from spreading. This is OK, but of course the contorta itself spreads over all the stable tussock areas. This is the problem now.

Anyhow the country is till impressive and I suppose it gets you used to tramping in North America. The other consideration is that the Kawekas don't have any leatherwood – or even much alpine scrub. Good value, straight out of open beech onto tussock tops!

Back to the trip. Once on Kaiarahi we headed north over Studholme Saddle and onto the firm snow of Mad Dog Hill and the higher main range leading to Kaweka J. From Kaweka J we then dropped off down to a snow clad basin and Back Ridge Hut arriving just on dusk.

Sunday saw us heading back onto Kaweka J, this time with an ice cold wind, just keeping ahead of the murk as it came in from the North. Back down to Kaiarahi we then investigated The Tits. Cooks Horn presented a problem as we attempted to traverse the ridge. We tried a sidle on the north side but were turned back by bluffs so we descended into the basin on the south side via steep snow gullies and frozen scree.

We had lunch at Kaweka Hut before crossing the Tutaekuri and climbing up onto Castle Rocks Plateau. Here, the other party were about to pike from a swim in the lakes. Both of our groups then joined forces to combat a tricky navigational problem before we reached the road and the van.

The drive back to Palmerston North was west over Gentle Annie and the Napier-Taihape having come to Kuri. via the Hawkes Bay end on Friday night. This road is one of the best in the North Island with its deeply incised rivers, snow covered plateau and the enclosing rim of the Kawekas, Kaimanawas and Ruahine Ranges.

The four of us were – Trevor Bissell, Eric van Toor, Peter Wiles and Terry Crippen.

The National Parks Bill 1980

The Club has made a submission to the Lands and Agriculture Select Committee of Parliament on this controversial bill. The main point of the submission was that the present administration of National Parks under the National Parks Act of 1952 is good and that the Parks should not be turned over to politicians and bureaucrats. Members wishing to see the submission should consult the Secretary.

If you are concerned about the Bill you should let your National Party Member of Parliament know and/or write to the local newspapers. Apathy and inaction could have a deleterious effect on our Parks and on our future tramping and mountaineering activities.

The submission from our Club and numerous others will provide the Government with reasoned arguments for abandoning the Bill. However, it is desirable to also supply political motivation. Concerned persons can assist with this. There are no special rules for writing to your M.P. but you should be polite, reasonable and not issue threats. Editors require you to write or print legibly on one side of the paper only with room for them to edit (i.e. wide margins and space between lines). The Public Library has a copy of both the National Parks Act 1952 and the National Parks Bill 1980.
